Penitentiary systems and foreign detainees: problems, resources and perspectives

How to get to Siena

A word about public transport in Italy: Whether travelling by train or bus, it is important to understand the rules regarding your ticket. In general, tickets for long distance public transport (high speed trains, major bus routes) are sold for a specific travel date and time, with a reserved seat. These tickets are essentially activated at the time of purchase, for the date and time indicated. This is the case for high speed trains along the Milan-Bologna-Florence-Venice-Rome-Naples lines, and long distance buses along the same routes. Meanwhile, travel on regional trains and local buses is generally unreserved seating, and the ticket must be activated by the user at the moment of travel, in a ticket machine located at the train station, or on board the bus. This is the case for train travel between Pisa-Siena and Florence-Siena, and bus travel Florence-Siena.

From Fiumicino airport (Rome)

By Train:

take the train “Leonardo Express” Roma Fiumicino - Rome Termini (<http://www.trenitalia.com/tcom/Informazioni/In-treno-da-Roma-all'aeroporto-Leonardo-da-Vinci/>) / regional train FL1 direction Stazione Roma Tiburtina.
